MUSEUMS MONUMENTS

Valencian culture is part of the essence of the people, displayed in over 60 cultural spaces including museums, monuments, and multidisciplinary spaces. In this guide, we introduce the 60 most important ones, and among those we suggest 10 museums and 10 essential monuments.

València is rich in history, as well as in the production of arts and crafts, which is why it is possible to find contemporary art museums, guild museums, museums with Gothic works or hidden treasures such as the revered Holy Chalice or Santo Cáliz. All of these are located in eclectic and interesting architectural spaces, from the Gothic to the latest and most modern architectural trends. Discovering them is to discover the heart and soul of Valencian culture.

10 TOP MONUMENTS

1. SILK EXCHANGE

CALLE LA LONJA, 2.

The Silk Exchange, or Lonja de la Seda and also Lonja de los Mercaderes (Merchants' Exchange), is Valencia's most outstanding example of a building in the civil Gothic style. It was started by the stonemason Pere Compte in the 15th century and became an emblematic monument of the Valencian Golden Age due to the commercial and social revolution that the trade in silk and other materials entailed at that time. The important silk industry and the geographical location of València made the city a place both the starting point and the destination of numerous economic transactions.

Declared a World Heritage Site by UNESCO in 1996, the Lonja has four parts that may be visited: the Salón de Contratación (Trading Hall) also known as the Columnario (the Columned Hall), an imposing hall with 24 helicoidal columns, eight of them free-standing and sixteen that serve as buttresses, which end in a rib vault. The Pabellón del Consulado (Pavilion of the Consulate) or Consulado del Mar (Consulate of the Sea), so called because it housed an institution of the same name created in the 13th century which was responsible for ensuring that all maritime and mercantile matters were undertaken correctly.

In this pavilion, the Tribunal del Comercio (Trade Tribunal) can be visited on the lower floor and the Main Hall and the Cámara del Consulado on the upper floor. Both of these are outstanding for their wooden coffered ceilings and tiled floors. The Patio de los Naranjos (Orange Tree Courtyard) leads to these three rooms, and also enables visitors to see the Torreón (Great Tower), which formerly served as a jail for traders with outstanding debts. The entrance to the tower is also well worth seeing. The Lonja is one of the emblems of the Silk Route in València.

2. CATEDRAL DE VALÈNCIA

PL. DE LA REINA, S/N.

Built on the site of a Roman temple, later a mosque, it dates back to the 13th century. The mix of architectural styles, from Romanesque to Baroque, can be seen in each of its three doors: the main door, or Puerta de los Hierros, is Baroque, the Puerta de los Apóstoles is Gothic and the Puerta del Palau is Romanesque. There are wonderful views of the city from the cathedral's Miguelete belfry, after climbing up the tower's 207 steps.

One of its chapels houses the Holy Chalice which was used by Jesus during the Last Supper, for which reason València holds the jubilee every five years. The next will be in 2020. It is the only chalice in the world recognised by the Vatican, and it has only been used by two Popes, Juan Pablo II and Benedict XVI, during the masses that they both held when visiting València.

8. SERRANOS AND QUART TOWERS

The Torres de Serranos and the Torres de Quart are two of the city gates that remain standing and which were part of the old medieval city wall that was pulled down in 1865. Both are in the Gothic style. The former were built by the stonemason Pere Balaguer between 1392 and 1398, whilst the latter were erected between 1441 and 1460 by Francesc Baldomar and Pere Compte, the master stonemason of other buildings of the time such as the Silk Exchange.

The Serranos Towers were used both as a defensive feature of the city and also as a triumphal arch. Currently, the most outstanding event that takes place at the feet of the towers is the Crida, when on the last Sunday in February the Fallas Queen of València welcomes all Valencians and visitors to the Fallas and calls on them to begin the festivities.

The choice of this emblematic place is to symbolise the arrival of outsiders to València centuries ago along the Serranos trail. The Quart Towers played a vital part in stopping Napoleon's troops in 1808 during the War of Independence against the French. The scars left on the towers by cannon balls can still be seen today.

9. SAN JUAN DEL HOSPITAL

TRINQUETE DE CABALLEROS, 5

The Church of St. John of the Hospital was a priory of the Knights of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem (sanjuanistas), with a hospital in the 13th century and converted into a military parish in the 18th century. Built later, it is considered to be the oldest church in Valencia, where the synthesis and elegance of Romanesque traditions and Gothic novelties, together with the elegant Baroque, can be found. It preserves the only cemetery that has come down to us from medieval Valencia, with its complete funeral chapel. In addition, the remains of the spina of the Roman circus can be seen in a crypt.

🕒 Monday to Friday, 10.30 a.m. to 1.30 p.m. From 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Mandatory reservation at: 963 922 965 or museo@sanjuandelhospital.es

NORTHERN STATION

XÀTIVA, 24

Modernist building by architect Demetrio Ribes. It is part of the "Viennese Secession" movement and was inaugurated in 1917. It has a unique and homogeneous treatment, both on the outside and in the interior finishes, paying homage to Valencian industry and especially to orange. The facades have certain dripping elements that remind us of the Lonja, they are symmetrical, of a markedly vertical character and modulated. The high quality of the mosaics on the ceilings, floors and walls stands out, as well as the forging work and the profusion of colourful ceramics.
